3.11(a)

Cleaning, sanitization, housekeeping, and pest control.

The inside runs with shavings for females and puppies are not being spot cleaned daily causing a build up of feces and urine soaked shavings on the floor. The whelping box housing a pug had several days' worth of feces in the box that was not removed. These enclosures must be spot cleaned daily to keep the animals from becoming soiled and for their comfort.

3.11(c)

Cleaning, sanitization, housekeeping, and pest control.

In general, there is a lot of dust, debris and clutter around the kennel that needs to be cleaned. Areas between the whelping boxes and the wall had excess dust and cobwebs that need to be removed. There were multiple items (used syringes, bottles etc.) stored on top of a whelping box that were covered in dust and there were miscellaneous items stored around the food supplies and spilled food on the floor that was not removed. All this clutter, dust and debris need to be addressed to keep the kennel clean to promote good housekeeping practices.
