Attending veterinarian and adequate veterinary care (dealers and exhibitors).

There was a female golden retriever (Ashly, 3yrs old) that had thickened and wrinkled skin on the inside of the ear flap. The inner ear had some redness and inflammation with a dark brown greasy material throughout the ear. The ear had not been cleaned recently or been observed to have any issues resulting in no treatment or veterinary care. While the dog was not showing visible signs of dicomfort, the ear does need cleaning and the veterinarian contacted to determine if there is any medical treatment required.

The lack of regular ear checks and cleaning as needed could result in possible ear infections or discomfort to the regulated animal if not treated in a timely manner

The licensee must use of appropriate methods to prevent, control, diagnose, and treat diseases and injuries. A routine for ear cleaning must be maintained for all regulated animals according to thier program of veterinary care.

To be corrected by: July 19, 2023
